Let me get this straight . . .

We’re going to be “gifted” with a health care plan we are forced to purchase and fined if we don’t,
Which purportedly covers at least ten million more people, without adding a single new doctor, but provides for 16,000 new IRS agents.

Written by a committee whose chairman says
he doesn’t understand it.

Passed by a Congress that didn’t read it but exempted themselves from it.

Signed by a President who smokes, with funding administered by a treasury chief who didn’t pay his taxes,

For which we’ll be taxed for four years before any benefits take effect, by a government which has already bankrupted Social Security and Medicare,

All to be overseen by a surgeon general who is obese, and financed by a country that’s broke!!!!!

NEC Launches World’s First
Contactless Hybrid Finger Scanner that Acquires Fingerprint and Finger Vein Data Simultaneously without Contact

Tokyo, February 24, 2011 - NEC Corporation (NEC, TSE: 6701) announced today the commercial launch of the world’s first device to simultaneously acquire fingerprint and finger vein characteristics without physical contact. Worldwide shipment of the “HS100-10 Contactless Hybrid Finger Scanner” (HS100-10) is scheduled to begin in May, 2011.

The HS100-10’s simultaneous acquisition of both fingerprint and finger vein information makes it particularly difficult for impostors to deceive the authentication system using it. Moreover, the system’s contactless sensor is robust against the characteristics of fingers that are exceedingly dry or moist with exceptional accuracy, which is difficult for conventional contact-based fingerprint authentication devices.

Furthermore, the HS100-10’s USB interface allows users to connect with a PC in order to logon to its operating system or unlock its screen saver in both a stand-alone environment and an ActiveDirectory(R) (*) environment.

The HS100-10 is also compatible with major access management software, including BM’s "Tivoli(R) Access Manager for Enterprise Single Sign-On” and Novell’s "Novell SecureLogin," this combination of support for ID and access management with biometric data significantly reduces user concerns regarding the proliferation of user IDs and passwords.

NEC holds the No.1 position in a number of fingerprint and face recognition fields based on accuracy evaluations carried out by the National Institute of Standards and Technology (NIST)(*2). Moreover, NEC’s possession of the world’s highest level original recognition algorithm is supported by the company’s combination with NEC’s originally developed vein
authentication advancements, these biometric authentication technologies are a formidable defense against identity theft.

NEC will continue to promote the development
and sales of products and services that capitalize
on advanced biometric authentication technologies
as part of its ongoing contributions to a safer, more secure society.

Finger Authentication Development Library” in order for the HS100-10 to be used with a broad range of business packages and user applications. Future, development plans include a steady rollout of solutions linked with business applications such as electronic medical records system.

Currently, there is an increasing demand for more stringent management of personal authentication and internal controls geared for business and government.
Under these conditions, fingerprint authentication is a highly accurate and secure technique that is already used for a wide variety of purposes. When used in combination with NEC’s originally developed vein
authentication advancements, these biometric authentication technologies are a formidable defense against identity theft.

NEC will continue to promote the development
and sales of products and services that capitalize
on advanced biometric authentication technologies
as part of its ongoing contributions to a safer, more

Politicians are the only people in the world who create problems and then campaign against them.

You have ever wondered, if both the Democrats and the Republicans are against deficits, WHY do we have deficits?

You have ever wondered, if all the politicians are against inflation and high taxes, WHY do we have inflation and high taxes?

You and I don’t propose a federal budget. The President does. You and I don’t have the Constitutional authority to vote on appropriations. The House of Representatives does.

You and I don’t write the tax code. Congress does. You and I don’t set fiscal policy, Congress does.

You and I don’t control monetary policy, the Federal Reserve Bank does.

One hundred senators, 435 congressmen, one President, and nine Supreme Court justices equate to 545 human beings out of the 300 million are directly, legally, morally, and individually responsible for the domestic problems that plague this country.

I excluded the members of the Federal Reserve Board because that problem was created by the Congress. In 1913, Congress delegated its Constitutional duty to provide a sound currency to a federally chartered, but private, central bank.

I excluded all the special interests and lobbyists for a sound reason. They have no legal authority. They have no ability to coerce a senator, a congress- man, or a President to do one cotton- picking thing. I don’t care if they offer a politician $1 million dollars in cash. The politician has the power to accept or reject it. No matter what the lobbyist promises, it is the legislator’s responsi- bility to determine how he votes.

Those 545 human beings spend much of their energy convincing you that what they did is not their fault. They cooperate in this common con regardless of party.

What separates a politician from a normal human being is an excessive amount of gall. No normal human being would have the gall of a Speaker, who stood up and criticized the Presi- dent for creating deficits. The President can only propose a budget. He cannot force the Congress to accept it.

The Constitution, which is the supreme law of the land, gives sole responsibility to the House of Repres- entatives for originating and approving appropriations and taxes. Who is the speaker of the House? John Boehner. He is the leader of the majority party. He and fellow House members, not the President, can approve any budget they want. If the President vetoes it, they can pass it over his veto if they agree to.

It seems inconceivable to me that a nation of 300 million cannot replace 545 people who stand convicted -- by putting them in jail -- or other methods, by putting them in the mental institutions. They and they alone, have the power. They and they alone, should be held accountable by the people who are their bosses.

Provided the voters have the gump- tion to manage their own employees. We should vote all of them out of office and clean up their mess!!!

It was a busy morning, about 8:30, when an elderly gentleman in his 80's arrived to have stitches removed from his thumb. He said he was in a hurry as he had an appointment at 9:00 am.

I took his vital signs and had him take a seat, Knowing it would be over an hour before someone would be able to see him. I saw him looking at his watch and Decided, since I was not busy with another patient, I would evaluate his wound. On exam, it was well healed, so I talked to one of the doctors, got the needed supplies to remove his sutures and redress his wound.

While taking care of his wound, I asked him if he had another doctor’s appointment this morning, as he was in such a hurry.

The gentleman told me no, that he needed to go to the nursing home to eat breakfast with his wife. I inquired as to her health.

He told me that she had been there For a while and that she was a victim of Alzheimer’s Disease. As we talked, I asked if she would be upset if he was a bit late. He replied that she no longer knew who he was, that she had not recognized him in five years now.

I was surprised, and asked him, ‘And you still go every morning, even though she doesn’t know who you are?”

He smiled as he patted my hand and said, ‘She doesn’t know me, but I still know who she is.’

I had to hold back tears as he left, I had goose bumps on my arm, and thought, that is the kind of love I want in my life.’

True love is neither physical, nor romantic. True love is an acceptance of all that is, has been, will be, and will not be.

With all the jokes and fun that are in e-mails, sometimes there is one that comes along that has an important message.

This one I thought I could share with you.

To the President and all 535 voting members of the Legislature, both parties.

It is now official - you are ALL corrupt morons: it is now official - you are ALL corrupt morons: we want to support.

Common Eye Complaints

Presbyopia (prez-bee-OH-pee-uh)--a gradual decline in the ability to focus on close objects or to see small print--is common after the age of 40. People with this condition often hold reading materials at arm’s length, and some may have headaches or “tired eyes” while reading or doing other close work. There is no known prevention for presbyopia, but the focusing problem can be relieved with glasses.

Floaters are tiny spots or specks that float across the field of vision. Most people notice them in well-lit rooms or outdoors on a bright day. Although floaters are normal, they may be a warning of certain eye problems, especially when occurring with light flashes. If you notice a sudden change in the type or number of spots or flashes, call your doctor.

Dry eyes occur when the tear glands produce too few tears. The result is itching, burning, or even reduced vision. An eye specialist can prescribe special eye drops ("artificial tears") to correct the problem.

Excessive tears may be a sign of increased sensitivity to light, wind, or temperature changes. In these cases, protective measures (such as sunglasses) may solve the problem. Tearing may also reflect more serious problems such as an eye infection or a blocked tear duct--both of which can be treated and corrected.

Who Is Rick Perry?

He is a fifth generation Texan, the son of hardworking west Texas tenant farmers – Democrats but conservatives through and through. He grew up in a farm town too small to be on the state map. Life was so hard that he was six years old before his house had indoor plumbing. His mother sewed his clothes, including the underwear he wore to college.

He is an Eagle Scout. After Paint Creek High School, he attended Texas A&M, graduated, and was commissioned into the Air Force where he became a C-130 pilot.

Now 61 years old, he has won nine elections to four different offices in Texas state government. In the first three elections he ran as a Democrat then switched to the Republican Party. He is currently the 47th governor of Texas – a position he has held for 11 years, the longest tenure of any governor in the nation.

He has never lost an election.

Rick Perry was the Lieutenant Governor to whom Governor George Bush handed his office after winning the 2000 Presidential election. Since then, Perry won gubernatorial elections in 2002, 2004, and 2010, the last time by 55% against a field consisting of a Democrat, a Libertarian, a Green Party, and an Independent.

Once he became its Governor, Texas – a right to work state that taxes neither personal income nor capital gains – has added more jobs than the other 49 states combined. In the last two years, low taxes and little regulation led his state to create 47% of all jobs created in the entire nation. Five of the top ten cities with the highest job growth in the nation are in Texas.

WHAT IS IT? Our September Issue Asked The Question What is this giant plant. Is it a weed, a flower or an herb? Is it useful or a nuisance?

HERE IS THE ANSWER! MULLEIN* (Verbascum thapsus) – Except pp 99-104 – A City Herbal by Maida Silverman

Volknames: Clown’s Langwort, Bullock’s Langwort, Our Lady’s Flannel, Adam’s Flannel, Indian Flannel, Felwort, Velvet Dock, Velvet Plant, Woolen, Blanket Herb, Beggar’s Blanket, Candlestick Plant, Tall Hag Torche, Hag Tuft, Witches’ Taper, Aaron’s Rod, Jacob’s Staff, St. Peter’s Staff, Quaker Rouge.

Location: Roadsides, embankments, vacant lots, and similar open, sunny areas.

Botanical Description: Probably everyone has seen Mullein. It is a pretty plant, particularly conspicuous along highways in the city. Mullein is quite tall. It generally grows to about four feet high, but plants of six feet and more are not uncommon.

The plant is biennial and in the first year produces a rosette of large, gray-green, feltlike leaves. The following year a tall, rigid stalk grows from the center of this rosette. This stalk (occasionally branched near the top) is clasped along its entire length by smaller leaves which actually merge with the stalk at their bases. The upper part of this stalk becomes the flower spike. As summer advances, it becomes covered with densely packed buds. In the Northeast, delicate yellow flowers open at random along this stalk from late June until September.

The entire plant is covered with downy hairs that give Mullein its characteristic soft, velvety texture and appearance, and help the plant retain moisture. In the fall the woody stalks are covered with a beautiful starlike pattern of empty seed pods, which turn brown and persist on the stems throughout the winter.

Mullein is an Old World plant. It was introduced from Europe, where it was for centuries an esteemed medicinal herb. The colonists planted it in their gardens; it has since escaped and become naturalized throughout the United States. Illustration by Maida Silverman.

Note: colorized for this website.

Historical Lore, Legends, and Uses: The great respect and love formerly accorded to Mullein can be inferred from the number and variety of the folknames for it, of which the above is but a partial list. Some allude to the feltlike, wooly nature and size of the leaves, others reflect usage.

Mullein was known in Greek as Flego and Fluma, that is, to set on fire. According to one writer, “it served as a wick to put into lamps to burn.” The leaves were rolled and dried and used as wicks for oil lamps and candles, and made excellent tinder. The Latin names for Mullein were Candelaria and Candelia Regia. “The elder age,” observed John Parkinson, a seventeenth-century herbalist, “used the stalks dipped in sueet for wedding to burn at funerals or otherwise, and so likewise the English name High Taper, used in the same manner as a taper or torch.”

Mullein has been a valued medicinal herb since antiquity. The Greek physician-herbalist Dioscorides was one of the first to recommend its use in curing diseases of the lungs, and it remained thus employed for more than 1,800 years. Infusions of the leaves and flowers were used, and simple decoctions were administered to cure lung ailments in swine and cattle.

Mullein was used to treat a variety of other ailments. Avash prepared from the leaves, flowers, and roots soothed sprains, reduced inflammations, and healed wounds. The flowers infused in oil were used to cure hematomas and as a specific cure for carbuncle.

In our own country, several native American tribes used Mullein to cure chest diseases. Since the plant was not native to America, this usage was probably received by them (no doubt along with the lung ailments it was said to cure) from the early settlers. The Navajos called Mullein “big tobacco.”

They mixed it with regular tobacco and smoked the combination to relieve coughing and spasms. It was also believed that this remedy would cure simple mental diseases, the use of evil magic, and the thinking of evil thoughts.

The Delaware made poultices by boiling the leaves of Mullein and putting them on sores. Applied to the joints, these poultices were said to reduce swelling and ease rheumatic pains. The Catawba called Mullein “gray leaf.” They mashed the leaves and used them for treating sprains, swelling, and wounds. For lung and bronchial troubles, the Catawba gathered buds from plants that had not yet blossomed and made a syrup with them called “waglet” (waglet). They used the flowers for a long time. Large quantities of Mullein were dried and placed in barns to keep mice away from the grain stored there.

The ancient beneficial properties of Mullein have not been entirely discarded. The plant is included in many over-the-counter asthma remedies, and modern homoeopathic doctors still prescribe it for treating chest complaints. In Europe, an extract of Mullein is used in the preparation of an Old World liqueur called Altvater lagnerdorff. It is thought hardly to surprise anyone that Mullein, companion to humankind for more than two thousand years, became endowed with various occult and supernatural powers. Not only is this the case, but these properties long predated the medicinal use of Mullein.

Recall the legend that swirling wheels were quoting an ancient legend when they observed: “Of Feldwort [as they called Mullein] it is said that Mercurius gave this name to Ulixes the Chieftain when he came to Circe, and after that he dreamed none of her witchcraft.” They add, “if one waketh with him one tway of this wort, he will not be teryfied with any aye, nor will a wild beast hurt him, or any evil come near.”

Mullein leaves were an ingredient in the medicine used to treat sprains, swelling, and love formerly accorded to Mullein, and helped the plant rise from time to time to observe its faithful; if not, he was untrue. Young girls rubbed their cheeks with a leaf to make them pink; much later, Quaker women, forbidden the use of rouge, did the same.

Suggested Uses: The dry seeds of Mullein, covered in the fall are among the most decorative wild plants for indoor decoration. They can be combined with other dried plants, but are even more effective when massed by themselves in a large jug. This arrangement looks especially handsome next to a fireplace. Individual stalks of Mullein can even be used as tapers to start the fire.

An unusual recommendation involving Mullein is mentioned in an old volume of the Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture (1933 edition). The first-year rosette, it suggests, can be potted as a houseplant, for the sake of its attractive shape, color, and texture.
I repeatedly get questions about who to finance through and interest rates, however the most common question I am asked is that the dealer wants to pull my credit and I don’t want to lower my points for credit score.

Yes, pulling your credit does subtract points from a credit score. However most bankers anticipate people shopping for automobiles at more than one dealership. Therefore to have 2, 3, 4 inquiries is common in today’s market place.

As soon as one secures the auto loan points are added to the credit score, either replacing or enhancing the score. It is very common sales tactic for the salesperson at one dealership to tell a shopper who hasn’t committed to buy his car not to pull credits a fear tactic. In my day of finance I encountered busy, lazy, or inexperienced finance or desk managers who would shotgun a prospective buyers application to all available lenders within that dealership. And yes, 10-15 inquiries will impact credit scores.

A lot has changed in today’s lending process. There are collective groups of lenders that have access to shared credit profiles online. So, there may be 3,4,5 lenders looking at credit profile with only one inquiry or pull.

This is especially common in secondary or sub-prime. Most banks in today’s market have a range, for example 719-690 for the best rate or a minimum credit score. However most bankers anticipate that they would even consider. for example 425 or 550, which will be higher interest yet set up by the bank to pre select by credit score.

Although, I have seen due to excessive inquiries alter a person’s interest rate. It is wise to limit the number of inquiries while shopping. If on the other hand the dealership has the automobile you desire and it is simply making the terms and conditions agreeable which can vary the amount available to finance, interest rate, amount of time to finance. As well as fee’s associated with sub prime, your monthly payment, required down payment, as well as the profit for the dealership and ability of securing the loan.

A pessimist sees the difficulty in every opportunity, an optimist sees the opportunity in every difficulty.

Your answers to all car needs - Call Tim today
The residents of 2 of the eight Freedom House Recovery Centers in Alamogordo, NM begin another day with a time of sharing, fellowship and prayer.

This daily event is vital to the wellbeing of each man in the program, giving him a sense of security as he shares his needs and aspirations with his fellow residents, prepares for work and intercedes for his family.

Without frequent prayer sessions the men have a tendency to fall prey to mood swings that eventually degenerate into depression and ultimate despair. With it the challenges of the day are partially transferred to the Lord. His word declares, “Cast your burdens upon me and I will give you rest.”

These morning sessions begin at 5:45 AM each day. You are invited to pray with us where you are. Email your requests to wes@ucf.net.

Perry said “no thanks” to the feds whose stimulus offered taxpayer dollars for education and unemployment assistance. The strings on “free money” from Washington, he said, would restrict Texas in managing its own affairs. Perry even depleted all state funds to fight recent wildfires before asking Washington for disaster relief. His request has been ignored, which comes across as an unvarnished federal power play, further pitting Perry against the federal government.
Liberal Intellectuals? Oxymoron!!

Some newsmen at the alphabet news stations speak of the liberal intellectuals in government as a well known and established fact. Their reporting on the budget debacle we were just treated to makes one wonder what they did for a common sense. The liberals in gov't and media told us repeatedly that compromise was the way we must make government work. I think we all agree that can be compromised on many issues but not on their financial terms. They talked about deficit reduction and shared sacrifice, useless terms that have no useable quantity, as if double speak equals some kind of workable formulas that all could agree to. I don’t think any of them ever understood what the opposition and the majority of citizens were driving at. Conservatives don’t agree with raising the debt limit because it eventually raises the debt that must be repaid and liberals won't look at the problem head on.

There’s a huge difference between the deficit and the debt and conserva- tives want to quit adding to the num- bers that raise our debt. The debt and its interest are the figures that must be understood what the opposition and the majority were driving at. Conservatives don’t agree with raising the debt limit because it eventually raises the debt that must be repaid and liberals won’t look at the problem head on.

Next year there will be some debates after the primaries and the liberals will insist on the moderates being liberals also, so their candidates won’t be asked to answer hard questions. They'll get questions about what kind of dog they have to bring in to the White House or the flavor of ice cream or what kind of shorts the candidate wears or what should we to do secure peace in the middle east and are we doing enough to help education?

If I were the moderator I’d ask which large government department would you eliminate first or would you be willing to cut every department 50% in your first year since most of them are largely paper shuffling offices that have very little to do with the real world?

Especially since most of them are staffed with bureaucrats who have no idea how to make any thing important work properly.

If the candidate is Obama I’d ask why he thinks we should have more IRS agents and fewer doctors.

That’s where we’re headed and I’d like to have it explained. I’d ask if we wouldn’t be much better off with 10% of the IRS agents we have now.

Maintain a Healthy Prostate throughout Your Life

The importance of maintaining proper nutrition throughout our lives has been more perfectly understood, as we mature. When we are very young, our parents have a major impact on our nutritional intake and instill our thoughts and understanding on health and nutrition. As children and young adults, our bodies seem to be resistant to the bombardment of health attacks leveled against our lifetime home. Generally speaking, our immune sys- tem is stronger in our youth and early adulthood. The importance of a mother nursing their child and receiving colos- trum is tantamount to supporting and strengthening the immune system from the very first feeding after birth. Our bodies are ever bombarded with “stuff” that attacks our health in various forms, however, as we age, it becomes ever increasingly apparent that the health issues we once withstood, many times unknowingly, become magnified to a place of unavoidable consideration and importance. At some moment, in our lives, we must address the health issues that “just won’t go away”. Many times, we take for granted our bodies signals for help and attention. This article could have been written in a “sand bucket” of different directions covering every health issue under the sun. Good nutrition plays an important role in every area of physical health. Proper diet, nutrition, exercise, rest, fresh air, light and liquid intake is of “high standing” to quality overall health. The earlier, in life, that we ap- ply basic health principles, the greater the long term effects can be, as we age and mature into the senior days of our physical life, upon this earth. Accord- ingly, each day invites us to make well- informed choices and decisions that will foundationally affect our daily health, as well as our long-term health. All this said, for men, prostate health is little addressed in our younger years, nevertheless, becomes an ever- increasing concern, as we age. Accord- ing to The American Cancer Society, prostate cancer is the second most common cancer in men. One in every six are diagnosed with prostate cancer and this form of cancer is the second leading cause of death in men. One in every thirty-six men will die of prostate cancer in the United States. These are very sobering statistics for men, their wives and their families.

It has been estimated, in the past, that over half of all men, between the ages of 40 and 59 years of age, have an enlarged prostate gland. Wow! We seem to hit 40, before we know it, and still keep adding up the years. So, for all of us men, in this country, we need to stand up and take note. Now is the time, to seek personal, positive and pro- active ways to support our own health, in this important matter. There are early signs to look for and to be aware of concerning prostate dysfunction. Please take action, if you have any of these conditions listed. Take charge of your health.

- The feeling of hesitation or delay when urinating
- Dribbling
- A weak urinary stream
- An interrupted urinary stream
- A need to urinate at night
- A need to urinate often
- The feeling that the bladder cannot be emptied completely

If any of these conditions exist, please see your physician for a check-up.

There are several herbs and nutri- tional supplements that have a posi- tive, supportive and nourishing effect on the prostate gland, that have been shown, historically, to lead to proper prostate health. As always, do your homework; seek wise counsel; and proactively take charge of your own health. Consider these items, in your overall program, to heighten prostate health and well-being.

THE SMELL OF RAIN

A cold March wind danced around the dead of night in Dallas as the doctor walked into the small hospital room of Diana Blessing. She was still groggy from surgery. Her husband, David, held her hand as they braced themselves for the latest news.

That afternoon of March 10, 1991, complications had forced Diana, only 24-weeks pregnant, to undergo an emergency Caesarean to deliver couple’s newborn daughter, Dana Lu Blessing. At 12 inches long and weighing only one pound nine ounces, they already knew she was perilously premature.

Still, the doctor’s solemn words dropped like bombs.

‘I don’t think she’s going to make it,’ he said, as kindly as he could.

‘There’s only a 10-per cent chance she will live through the night, and even then, if by some slim chance she does make it, her future could be a very cruel one’

Numb with disbelief, David and Diana listened as the doctor described the devastating problems Dana would likely face if she survived.

She would never walk, she would never talk, she would probably be blind, and she would certainly be prone to other catastrophic conditions from cerebral palsy to complete mental retardation, and on and on.

‘No! No!’ was all Diana could say. She and David, with their 5-year-old son Dustin, had long dreamed of the day when Dana, their little girl, would join their family of four.

At last, when Dana turned two months old, her parents were able to hold her in their arms for the very first time.

And two months later, though doctors continued to gently but grimly warn that her chances of surviving, much less living any kind of normal life, were next to zero, Dana went home from the hospital, just as her mother had predicted. Five years later, when Dana was a petite but feisty young girl with glittering gray eyes and an unquenchable zest for life.

She showed no signs whatsoever of any mental or physical impairment. Simply, she was everything a little girl could be and more. But that happy ending was far from the end of her story.

One blistering afternoon in the summer of 1996 near her home in Irving, Texas, Dana was sitting in her mother’s lap in the bleachers of a local ball park where her brother Dustin’s baseball team was practicing.

As always, Dana was chattering non-stop with her mother and several other adults sitting nearby, when she suddenly fell silent. Hugging her arms across her chest, little Dana asked, ‘Do you smell that?’

Smelling the air and detecting the approach of a thunderstorm, Dana replied, ‘Yes, it smells like rain.’ Dana closed her eyes and again asked, ‘Do you smell that?’

Once again, her mother replied, ‘Yes, I think we’re about to get wet. It smells like rain.’

Still caught in the moment, Dana shook her head, patted her thin shoulders with her small hands and loudly announced, ‘No, it smells like Him. It smells like God when you lay your head on His chest.’

Tears blurred Diana’s eyes as Dana happily hopped down to play with the other children.

Before the rains came, her daughter’s words confirmed what Diana and all the members of the extended Blessing family had known, at least in their hearts, all along.

During those long days and nights of her first two months of her life, when her nerves were too sensitive for them to touch her, God was holding Dana on His chest and it is His loving scent that she remembers so well.
Obama is victim of Bush's failed promises!

Barack Obama is setting a record-setting number of records during his first term in office:

- Largest budget ever. Largest deficit ever. Largest number of broken promises ever.
- Most self-serving speeches ever. Largest number of agenda-setting failures ever. Fastest dive in popularity ever!

Just one year ago, fresh from his inauguration celebrations, President Obama was flying high. After one of the nation's most inspiring political campaigns, the election of America's first black president had captured the hopes and dreams of millions.

To his devout followers, it was inconceivable that a year later his administration would be gripped in self-imposed crisis.

Of course, they don't see it as self-imposed. It's all George Bush's fault! George Bush, who doesn't have a vote in congress and who no longer occupies The White House, is to blame for it all.

He broke Obama's promise, to put all bills on the White House web site for five days before signing them. He broke Obama's promise, to have the congressional health care negotiations broadcast live on C-SPAN.

He broke Obama's promise, to close the detention center at Guantanamo in the first year.

He broke Obama's promise, to make peace with direct, no precondition talks with America's most hate-filled enemies during his first year in office, ushering in a new era of global cooperation.

He broke Obama's promise, to end earmarks.

He broke Obama's promise, to keep unemployment from rising above 8 percent.

He broke Obama's promise, to keep the job that needs to be done.

He broke Obama's promise, to have the voter rebellion in Massachusetts, was the result of the same 'Tax the Rich 90%', 'Let's talk jobs', and my personal favorite..."REPUBLICANS CAN BE GRACIOUS"

• ONE: Don't miss the boat.
• TWO: Remember that we are all in the same boat.
• THREE: Plan ahead. It wasn't rain-when Noah built the Ark.
• FOUR: Stay fit. You’re 60 years old, someone may ask you to do something really big.
• FIVE: Don’t listen to critics; just get on with the job that needs to be done.
• SIX: Build your future on high ground.
• SEVEN: For safety’s sake, travel in pairs.
• EIGHT: Speed isn’t always an advantage. The snails were on board with the cheetahs.
• NINE: When you’re stressed, float awhile.
• TEN: Remember, the Ark was built by amateurs; the Titanic by professionals.
• ELEVEN: No matter the storm, when you are with God, there’s always a rainbow waiting.

POLITICIANS CAN BE GRACIOUS

You might recall that when Scott Brown won the election to the U.S. Senate from Massachusetts, capturing "The Ted Kennedy Seat", President Obama said, Brown's victory was the result of the same voter anger that propelled Obama into office in 2008. People were still angry about George Bush and the policies of the past 10 years. And they wanted change.

Yes, according to the president, the voter rebellion in Massachusetts, was George Bush's fault.

Therefore, in retaliation, they elected a Republican to the Ted Kennedy seat, ending a half-century of dominance by Democrats. It is all George Bush's fault!

Will the failed administration of George Bush ever end, and the time for hope and change ever arrive???

Will President Obama ever accept responsibility for something / anything?

NEW DRIVERS LICENSE

“I’ll bet you’re in the back seat to get a change of scenery after all those months of sitting in the front passenger seat teaching me how to drive,” says the beaming boy to his father.

“Nope,” comes dad’s reply, “I’m gonna sit here and kick the back of your seat as you drive, just like you’ve been doing to me all these years.”

An elderly man is stopped by the police around 1 a.m. and is asked where he is going at this time of night.

The man replies, “I am going to a lecture about alcohol abuse and the effects it has on the human body.”

The officer then asks, “Really? Who is giving that lecture at this time of night?”

The man replies, “That would be my wife.”

The very bad accident

Two men got out of their cars after they collided at an intersection. One took a flask from his pocket and said to the other, “Here, maybe you’d like a nip to calm your nerves.”

“Thanks,” he said, and took a long pull from the container.

“Here, you have one, too,” he added, handing back the whisky.

“Well, I’d rather not,” said the first. “At least not until after the police have been here.”

President Obama walks into the Bank of America to cash a check.

As he approaches the cashier he says “Good morning Ma’am, could you please cash this check for me?”

Cashier: “It would be my pleasure sir. Could you please show me your ID?”

Obama: “Truthfully, I did not bring my ID with me as I didn’t think there was any need to.

I am President barrack obama, the president of the United States of America!”

Cashier: “Yes sir, I know who you are, but with all the regulations and monitoring of the banks because of impostors and forgers, etc I must insist on seeing ID.”

Obama: “Just ask anyone here at the bank who I am and they will tell you.

Everybody knows who I am.”

Cashier: “I am sorry Mr. President but these are the bank rules and I must follow them.”

Obama: “I am urging you, please, to cash this check”

Cashier: “Look Mr. President this is what we can do.

One day Tiger Woods came into the bank without ID. To prove he was Tiger Woods he pulled out his putting iron and made a beautiful shot across the bank into a cup. With that shot we knew him to be Tiger Woods and cashed his check.

Another time, Andre Agassi came in without ID. He pulled out his tennis racquet and made a fabulous shot whereas the tennis ball landed in my cup. With that shot we cashed his check.

So, Mr. President, what can you do to prove that it is you, and only you. The President of the United States?”

Obama stood there thinking, and thinking and finally said:

“Honestly, my mind is a total blank—— there is nothing that comes to my mind. I can’t think of a single thing”

Cashier: “Will that be large or small bills, Mr. President?”

President Obama.
